A DELIGHTFUL poi luncheon was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Samuel Parker on the lanai of her Emma street residence in honor of the ladies of the Senatorial party now visiting in Honolulu, including Mrs. Burton, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Robertson, Miss Gregg and Mrs. John M. Thurston, wife of ex-Senator Thurston. Queen Liliuokalani was also a guest of honor. The table was placed on the lanai, and was prettily decorated in yellow, masses of coreopsis blossoms and lilya leis giving it a rich coloring. The guests partook of an elaborate poi lunch with all its accompaniments of other choice native dishes, while native melodies were played and sung by Hawaiian musicians. The luncheon was given at 1:30 o'clock, and during the afternoon Col. Parker escorted the Senators, members of the Commission and several friends, to the lanai. It was one of the most elaborate luncheons of the season. The guests were Queen Liliuokalani, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Burton, Mrs. Robertson, Miss Gregg, Mrs. J. M. An array of talent among the Elks will be summoned by the Exalted Ruler to prepare for the entertainment. Mr. McCrosson was appointed the courier of the Elks to accom-instructors of the empire. Several months ago critics who heard her sing said her voice was of the purest quality and so rich in tone that they anticipated a successful future on the concert or operatic stage. Lately, however, her throat became affected and after an operation she has had difficulty in singing through an entire opera.

KILLED NINETEEN FILIPINOS.

How a Maine Recruit Tried to End the War.

A little knot of guardsmen gathered about the sergeant's quarters of L company last evening listened to some very interesting tales of soldier life in the far east. One who had served in the Forty-sixth in the Philippines had his say as follows:

"We had one man in our company who, had he been given rope enough, would have closed the campaign in the islands in short order. His name was Furlong and his home was in Waterville. He served with the Maine artillery in Cuba and re-enlisted for the Philippine service at Biddeford. I understand that he would not enlist at home because he wanted to get where the officers would allow him to fight. The rendezvous officer at Waterville knew Furlong and would take him into his company which was not what Furlong wanted. We had been in the islands nearly our whole term of enlistment before Furlong had a chance to show what he could do if he had half a show. One day he was stationed at an outpost and instructed to watch things and shoot down anything in the form of the enemy. His post lay along a country road and he had not been out there more than an hour and a quarter before the colonel went out to see how everything was going along. Judge his surprise when he found the road where Furlong was stationed strewn with the dead bodies of Filipinos and not a shot had been heard in camp. The Filipinos had been beaten to death, evidently by the butt of a rifle. Coming upon Furlong who was wiping the stock of his gun the colonel asked him to explain the presence of the dead. Furlong told the colonel that he had killed them with the stock of his gun because he did not want to disturb the camp. He had been afforded no opportunity to do anything in the line of fighting since going to the islands and he simply made the best of a good chance to get in his work, knowing full well that a shot would bring the whole command to the scene. 'There's your birds, colonel,' said Furlong. 'You can count them.' The colonel counted nineteen Filipinos, all of whom had been slain by the soldier's rifle butt in an hour and a quarter and his rifle was in good form for another victim. The colonel returned at once to camp and ordered Furlong relieved from the post. Furlong was sent the next day to Manila where he was kept busy checking freight. The colonel gave as his reason for thus disposing of Furlong that he did not propose to have any private soldier work him out of a good job if he knew it and that if Furlong was retained at the front there would be an end to the campaign in less than a month. The trouble with Furlong appeared to be that he was out there to

of your haggling with yourself about the price of your new Spring Suit or Top Coat. You see some clothes advertised in such tempting language, at such low prices, that you feel like "saving money." Now, don't save money in the wrong direction.

You should never pay less than $15.00 if you want a really good Suit of Clothes or Top Coat and as much more as you can afford.

If you will invest $20.00 or $25.00, we assure you that the interest on the investment in the way of additional service, comfort and pleasure of knowing that you are wearing really fine clothes, will more than repay you the few extra dollars that you spend in this direction; you can better cut off your expenditure in any other direction rather than for clothes. There are no ready-to-wear clothes that can compare for general excellence with those that bear this label. The lowest priced Suit or Top Coat that we have of this make is $15.00, and from that they range all the way up to $35.00; but, you can only get as good as these by having them made-to-measure by the very best tailor, who would charge you at least twice as much.
